

Quality Policy

Our clients' expectations and requirements are premised on the notion that the services are to be conducted by an independent consultant guided by principles and ethics. The mode under which the services are to be conducted is based on the highest form of intellectual services for the clients' appreciation and satisfaction.

The above manifestation shall be considered as a resolution and, in order to achieve the objectives, adherence to the stipulations hereunder is required.

- (1) A management system shall be established for quality control and compliance appropriate to normal requirements, and shall be subject to continuous improvement to enhance its effectiveness.
- (2) The quality policy shall be disseminated to all employees to ensure the specific implementation of the objectives and establish programs for the locus of responsibility with identification of purposes and activities through the cooperation of all concerned.
- (3) Periodic management review and quality management systems, including the quality policy objectives and achievements, shall be reviewed, and policy for continuous improvement shall be directed.
- (4) The implementation and improvement of quality management shall pass human resource development and through various in-house systems for which the required resources will be deployed for the proper management of information property and for the promotion of positive and creative usage of information.

October 1, 2015

Eiji YONEZAWA, President

Oriental Consultants Global Co., Ltd.
CONSULTING ENGINEERS